

Game Night For Two

We have a closet full of games at our house and we bet you do, too! When was the last time you spent an evening away from the screens and enjoyed a game night for two? There are a lot of games that don't require a houseful of people.

Not a big game player? That's okay...the benefits you'll experience in your marriage will offset the time spent doing something that might not usually be on your "favorites" list. Silence your cell phones and enjoy a little face to face competition one night this week!

Need some ideas? These games work well for two:

Backgammon

Bananagrams

Blink

Boggle

Checkers

Chess

Chinese Checkers

Double Solitaire

Farkle

Jenga

Monopoly

Othello

Phase 10

Scrabble
